

Nominations for Induction into the South Carolina Dairy Hall of Fame

Award Selection Process:

A South Carolina Dairy Hall of Fame Nomination Review Committee consisting of the SCFB Dairy Advisory Committee Chair and four members of the SC Dairy Hall of Fame (as selected by the SCFB Dairy Advisory Committee Chair and appointed for staggered two-year terms) shall review all nominations and make recommendations to the SC Farm Bureau Dairy Advisory Committee. The SC Farm Bureau Dairy Advisory Committee has the final approval of any person selected for inclusion into the SC Dairy Hall of Fame.

Criteria for Consideration:

- Anyone may submit nominations. Self-nomination is discouraged.
- Nominees may be living or deceased.
- Nominees should show demonstrated achievement in one of the following three categories:
 - Dairy Leadership: someone whose leadership has had a direct and significant impact benefiting the dairy industry in South Carolina.
 - Exemplary dairyman: a dairyman whose management practices and innovative techniques were pioneering and served as a template for other dairymen, helping them improve profitability and sustainability on their farms.
 - Educator, industry support: Individuals whose service to the dairy industry in South Carolina has supported the SC Dairy industry's marketing of dairy products, product or marketing innovation, or assisted SC dairy farmers significantly in improving management and profitability on their dairies.

Selection Process:

The Nomination Review Committee will only consider applications submitted using the accompanying form. Recommendations for new inductees are not required every year and will only be made if the committee feels a nomination truly demonstrates achievement in one of the three categories. While the Nomination Review Committee is not required to forward a nominee to the SCFB Dairy Advisory Committee each year, they may forward more than one if they feel the names submitted to them warrant multiple inductees.

Nominations from previous years are not automatically carried forward; however, SCFB staff will check with nominators prior to the deadline to see if they wish to have their nomination remain in consideration and will be given the opportunity to update their initial application.
